Moving Forward Through Justice

Khmer Rouge Tribunal Delivers First Judgment

In a landmark ruling, the Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia (ECCC) handed down its first sentence on 26 July.

The ECCC's Trial Chamber sentenced former Khmer Rouge prison chief Kaing Guek Eav alias Duch to 35 years' imprisonment after finding him guilty of crimes against humanity and grave breaches of the 1949 Geneva Conventions.

Nearly 1,000 visitors came to the court to watch the historical judgment proceedings, with people following the verdict from inside the public gallery or outside on one of the many TV screens dotted around the court compound.

US Under-Secretary of State Visits the KR Tribunal

A senior official of the US government paid a visit to the Khmer Rouge tribunal to gain first-hand knowledge of the work of the tribunal on 17 July.

US Under-Secretary of State for Political Affairs William Burns led a six-member delegation to the Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia (ECCC).

ECCC's Acting Director of Administration H.E. Tony Kranh and Deputy Director Knut Rosandhaug presented the overview of the tribunal. The court's senior management briefed the visitors on the progress the ECCC has made so far and the future challenges it faces, including financial matters.

In response, Mr. Burns said that the court has already made a lasting impact on Cambodia's society at large, and its judicial system in particular.

"During my tour of the ECCC, I was impressed by the dedication of the court's Cambodian and international staff," he said.

"The court represents a milestone in Cambodian justice, both in holding to account those most responsible for the horrific crimes of the Khmer Rouge era, and in strengthening the rule of law in Cambodia."

Japan, EU Donate Funds to ECCC

The Cambodian side of the Khmer Rouge tribunal received US$2.3 million from the Japanese government in mid July and is to receive another 2 million euro, or around US$2.5 million, from the European Union in coming days, both of which will help the court to pay the salaries of the Cambodian judicial officials and staff.

In an award ceremony held at the Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia prior to the disbursement, Japanese Ambassador Masafumi Kuroki said the Khmer Rouge tribunal is the final stage of the Cambodian peace process which is expected to prevent the recurrence of atrocities committed during the Democratic Kampuchea regime.

"I hope that this Japanese assistance will not only help the ECCC overcome the present financial shortfall but also further strengthen the spirits of national staff of the ECCC at this critical juncture of the judicial process," he added.

Meanwhile, the EU signed on 13 July an agreement with the Royal Government of Cambodia on the US$2.5 million donation, which was pledged late last year and is now expected to disburse shortly. The money will be managed by the United Nations Office for Project Services on behalf of the EU.

Japan and the EU are the two largest donors to the national side of the tribunal, together having financed 53 % of the total contributions so far.

US War Crimes Envoy Meets Court Officials

US Ambassador-at-large for War Crimes Issues Stephen J. Rapp met with both administration and judicial officials at the Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia (ECCC) on 27 July.

It was Mr. Rapp's second ECCC visit since he assumed his post last year. He met with Pre-Trial Chamber President Prak Kimsan, International Co-Investigating Judge Marcel Lemonde and International Co-Prosecutor Andrew Cayley to gain insights into progress in ECCC cases, and discussed with Acting Director of Administration H.E. Tony Kranh and his deputy Knut Rosandhaug funding issues and completion strategy.

Mr Rapp also attended the judgment in Case 001 on 26 July.

Among the 950 visitors were 267 journalists and 58 dignitaries, including Cambodian government officials and foreign diplomats.

For those unable to attend the verdict in person, all eight national television networks and a dozen Cambodian radio stations broadcast the proceedings live. In addition, a live streaming in English of the judgment hearing could be viewed on the ECCC website.

Duch was transferred to the ECCC detention centre in July 2007 for charges of crimes against humanity and grave breaches of the 1949 Geneva Conventions. In the judgment read out by Trial Chamber President Judge Nil Nonn, Duch was convicted for his role as Deputy and Chairman of the notorious S-21 security centre during Democratic Kampuchea, where at least 12,273 people were detained and died from torture or execution.

His sentence was reduced by five years due to his illegal detention by the Cambodian Military Court between 1999 and 2007, and he is entitled to further credit for time already served.

According to the Internal Rules of the ECCC, parties have 30 days to file their notice of appeal with the Supreme Court Chamber. During this period, Duch will remain in ECCC custody.

Trial Chamber Judges enter the courtroom on 26 July to pronounce their verdict in Case 001

In Duch's trial, which began in March last year and wrapped up in November, 55 witnesses including 22 civil parties were heard. In total, 31,349 visitors attended the hearings during that period.

The highly publicised verdict delivered on 26 July marked the conclusion of the ECCC's first case, which has produced 184,000 pages of documents in the court's three official languages Khmer, English and French; 261 transcripts; as well as 810 audio and video recordings.

Speaking at a press conference after judgment proceedings had finished, National Co-Prosecutor Chea Leang said the trial had been conducted "in accordance with international standards of fair trial".

"Nothing can erase the pain and suffering endured by the Cambodian people," Co-Prosecutor Leang told reporters. "However, the judgment delivered today against Kaing Guek Eav alias Duch finally represents a credible legal acknowledgment of the criminality of the Khmer Rouge policies."

The Friends of the ECCC, an organisation representing the major donor nations and co-chaired by the embassies of France and Japan, also welcomed the completion of Case 001.

"The donors recognise the commitment of the national and international judges as well as all those working for the ECCC and their independent and comprehensive work, in order to uphold high standards of law and due process," the organisation said in an official statement.

"The donors reaffirm their confidence in and support of the ECCC in delivering justice to the Cambodian people and in helping Cambodia strengthen further its efforts for the rule of law."

Currently before the court are three cases. The tribunal's co-investigating judges are expected to issue a closing order in Case 002 against Khmer Rouge leaders Nuon Chea, Ieng Sary, Ieng Thirith and Khieu Samphan, as well as Duch in September. Judicial investigation in Cases 003 and 004 are also underway.

Pre-Trial Chamber

The Pre-Trial Chamber (PTC) has completed by 15 July its deliberations and rendered decisions in a number of pending matters before it and disposed of a number of procedural and other case-management related matters.

As mentioned in the previous Court Report, the PTC, after considering and deciding on all appeals pending before it, remitted six matters to the Co-Investigating Judges (CIJs) for reconsideration. The CIJs have issued their reconsideration decisions on all of these matters and the PTC considered and decided on all the related subsequent submissions filed by the parties. The PTC's disposition for each of these matters has been notified to the parties.

The PTC is currently seized of three strictly confidential applications (PTC08, PTC 09 and PTC50&51).

On 9 July 2010, the PTC issued a warning to the parties following the publication of confidential information in The Cambodia Daily. The PTC reminded the parties of their duty of confidentiality and that sanctions may be imposed for violation of this duty.

The PTC also notified to the parties fully reasoned decisions on several appeals in which only its disposition on appeal was notified during the previous reporting period.

All these matters pertain to Case 002.

A more detailed report on PTC's decisions notified during this reporting period is given on page 6. Some of these decisions are classified as confidential and are therefore notified only to the parties at this time. Public redacted versions are being prepared and will be placed on the ECCC website in due course.

Supreme Court Chamber

There are no decisions pending before the Supreme Court Chamber, which is not currently operational.

Office of the Co-Investigating Judges

Investigations

During the month of June, the Office of the Co-Investigating Judges (OCIJ) continued to work on the drafting of the closing order in Case 002. With regards to Case 003 and 004, investigation conducted by international investigators started with one field mission and planning was made for two others set to take place in July.

Civil Parties

In order to be able to issue the orders in relation to the admissibility of all civil party applications before or by the Closing Order in Case 002, the Co-Investigating Judges need to ensure that all the relevant documents relating to the applicants are on the case file. The Co-Investigating Judges are currently filing the 3,993 civil party applications received from VSS up until 30 April 2010 in Case 002. In addition, they have received 2,376 supplementary information in support of initial civil party applications by the 30 June 2010 deadline.

Pursuant to the revised Internal Rules, the Co-Investigating Judges have to ensure that all civil parties are legally represented by the time of Closing Order. The necessary additional lawyers are being recruited by the Office of the Administration and the OCIJ will issue shortly an order designating lawyers for all those civil parties who do not have legal representation at that time.

Outreach

During the month, two outreach-related functions were conducted. The International Co-Investigating Judge participated in a colloquium on the topic The Confrontation or the Complement of the Major Legal Systems: The Penal Justice in Cambodia organized by the Royal University of Law and Economics; and an OCIJ Cambodian Legal Officer participated in a Radio Talk Programme with 102 FM on the topic of Victims and Witness Protection before ECCC.

Office of the Co-Prosecutors

Pre-Trial Proceedings

In June 2010, the Office of the Co-Prosecutors (OCP) continued its participation in the judicial investigation and the appellate proceedings in Case 002, in which charged persons Duch, Khieu Samphan, Ieng Sary, Ieng Thirith and Nuon Chea are being investigated for crimes described in the Introductory Submission of 18 July 2007.

Throughout the month, all the members of the OCP including prosecutors, investigators, analysts, case manager, information management staff and interns were engaged principally in the preparation of the OCP's final pre-trial submission to be filed imminently before the Co-Investigating Judges. This document will contain an analysis of law and evidence collected in the three years of judicial investigation. It is expected to run into 650 pages and contain more than 7,000 substantive footnotes.

The OCP also filed its (1) notice of intention to pursue the appeal against the Co-Investigating Judges' order refusing to place evidentiary material on the case file (23 June) and, (2) written submissions in compliance with the Pre-Trial Chamber's decision of 15 June 2010 (28 June).

Criminal Complaints

To date, the OCP has forwarded more than 4,151 criminal complaints to the Co-Investigating Judges for inclusion in Case 002. These were received from individual complainants through the Victims Support Section.

Victims Support Section

The Victims Support Section has released latest figures regarding Civil Party applications, Complaints, Powers-of-Attorney and supplementary information submitted by Victims of the Khmer Rouge regime in Case 002.

3,993 Civil Party applicants are currently in Case 002 after some of them have requested to withdraw their applications and others requested to change forms of participation since the deadline for receiving Civil Party applications, 29 January 2010, set by the Office of Co-Investigating Judges (OCIJ).

3,203 Powers-of-Attorney were received and 2,136 applicants submitted supplementary information in support of their original Civil Party applications by the 30 June 2010 deadline set by OCIJ. The Victims Support Section is currently in the process of reviewing and analyzing all the documents received so as to ensure their speedy transmission to OCIJ who will then assess them in light of the upcoming admissibility decisions of the Civil Party applications.

So far, a total of 4,135 victims have submitted Complaints to the ECCC. The Victims Support Section will continue to receive and process any further Complaints and their supplementary information and forward them to the Office of the Co-Prosecutors (OCP).

New VSS head

Rong Chhorng was recently appointed as VSS Officer-in-Charge. Mr. Rong initially joined the ECCC in August 2008 as Chief of Human Resources Section.

Prior to this, he was the Vice-Chairman and Secretary General of National Committee for Population and Development of the Office of the Council of Ministers; and Executive Director of a local NGO for 10 years.

Mr. Rong holds a Masters of Industrial Relations in Human Resources Development, a Bachelors of Education in Mathematics from Royal University of Phnom Penh, and is currently pursuing a PhD in Public Administration from the University of the Philippines.

Trial Chamber

26 July 2010 The Trial Chamber (TC) rendered its first verdict in Case 001 concerning Kaing Guek Eav alias Duch. TC found him guilty of crimes against humanity and grave breaches of the Geneva Conventions of 1949, and sentenced him to 35 years of imprisonment. TC also considered a reduction of 5 years in the 35-year sentence appropriate as a remedy for his unlawful detention by the Cambodian Military Court between May 1999 and July 2007.

Kaing Guek Eav served as Deputy and then Chairman of the former security centre S-21 during the Democratic Kampuchea. In its judgment, TC found that every individual detained within S-21 was destined for execution in accordance with the Communist Party of Kampuchea policy to smash all enemies and that at least 12,273 individuals were detained and executed at S-21. TC also found that Kaing Guek Eav not only implemented but actively contributed to the development of Communist Party of Kampuchea policies at S-21.

In its judgment, TC declared 66 among 90 applicants admitted as Civil Parties, and granted their request that their names be included in the judgment and ordered the compilation and publication of all statements of apology made by the Accused.

This judgment is appealable by the parties in accordance with the Internal Rules. Until the judgment becomes final, the Accused shall remain in detention.

A Thousand Visitors Witness Historic Judgment

Almost 1,000 Cambodians and foreigners attended on 26 July the Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia, Phnom Penh, to witness the judgment hearing in Case 001 against Kaing Guek Eav alias Duch. Staff members from the tribunal's Public Affairs Section captured the day in images and words (see story on page 8).

Mixed Voices on Landmark Verdict

Not a sound could be heard inside the courtroom, when the Trial Chamber judges announced that they found Kaing Guek Eav alias Duch guilty as charged and sentenced him to 35 years' imprisonment.

"I was surprised to see how calm the public reaction was," said American lawyer David Haskel who sat in the public gallery during the judgment hearing. "In a US Supreme Court hearing people tend to react very strongly. But here I didn't hear a single murmur go through the crowd."

Haskel was one of several audience members interviewed by the court's Public Affairs Section immediately after Duch's verdict to gauge people's initial reaction to the judgment. While silence prevailed during the verdict reading, a number of locals turned visibly upset after exiting the tribunal building.

"I am not happy with Duch's sentence," said 69-year old S-21 survivor Bou Meng, who is also one of the 66 admitted Civil Parties. "I want him [to have] a death sentence given the fact that I was treated like a dog while I was an S-21 prisoner."

But amidst the strong emotional response, a number of Cambodians said they overall approved of the judgment.

"I agree with the verdict, even though I personally wanted the court to give him a more severe sentence," said Hem Thon, a villager from Kampong Speu province.

"My husband and children died of starvation under the KR. During the verdict, I experienced flashbacks to the Khmer Rouge regime and I was in tears. Now, I felt better."

Sok Thea, a 26-year old monk from Phnom Penh, said he considered the sentence to be "reasonable".

"[Duch] is not the only one who committed those crimes, there were more people involved. The decision was up to the tribunal which has investigated on the case, and if the court sentences him to 35 years, then I agree."

For 58-year old Nhep Meoun from Kampong Thom province, "the court's sentence for Duch is balanced with his guilt".

In addition to the huge turnout of villagers, the verdict hearing also attracted 58 dignitaries. Among them was local government official Sok Kavan. Mr. Kavan, a member of the Council of Jurists at the Office of the Council of Ministers in the Royal Government of Cambodia, said he was "very satisfied" with Duch's sentence.

"The judgment was well reasoned, explaining the charges, applicable laws, mitigating factors and so on," he said. "I believe the general public would understand why the judges came to that conclusion."

The recently appointed German Ambassador to Cambodia, Dr. Wolfgang Moser, called the court proceedings "very professional".

"It was very impressive that the Chamber carried out its deliberation of judgment following the international procedure," he said.

Meanwhile Gaëtan Crespel, the Archive Manager at the Bophana Audio Visual Resource Center, highlighted the historical component of the court.

"It speaks for the court that we have reached the end of the trial and that the tribunal has conducted the proceedings in a relatively short amount of time," he said.

"However, I will wait until all cases are done before forming an opinion about the tribunal. I will also wait for history to bring clarification – it's a long, complex debate and for now there are more questions than answers."

Young Filmmakers Capture Khmer Rouge Legacy

Students from the Department of Media and Communications (DMC) at the Royal University of Phnom Penh have produced 10 short documentary films about how ordinary Cambodians try to deal with the Khmer Rouge legacy.

Filed at 10 mass grave sites across the country, the Recaptured series focuses on how survivors want to use these sites in the future to be able to educate their young generations. Some of the locations have already been turned into memorial sites while others are rice fields or shallow pits.

“The idea of making these films was to record a historical event and memory before it completely vanished into time,” said 22-year old filmmaker Thida Prak who is currently doing an internship in the Public Affairs Section at the Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia (ECCC).

“In some places, people who are living around the site do not know that there are mass graves near their homes because they were evacuated out of their village during Democratic Kampuchea.”

The course assignment, created in collaboration with the German non-profit Deutscher Entwicklungsdienst (DED), also helped Thida and her fellow classmates to gain a better understanding of modern history in their country.

“We are a young generation of Cambodian; we didn't know much about Khmer Rouge but after doing this assignment we know better,” said Molyka Bin, another student involved in the project. “We wanted to learn about what happened at those places, how people lived with them, and what they want to do with them.”

This is the second documentary venture undertaken by DMC students. In 2007, undergraduates produced Looking Back, Looking Ahead 1 & 2, a documentary series featuring testimonials from Khmer Rouge survivors and their views on the ECCC.

DMC professor Andreas Grigo, who is also a senior advisor for DED, supervised the students during their Recaptured assignment.

“Cambodia is currently at a crossroads and Recaptured addresses questions about how citizen deal with KR legacy and how they want to continue with history,” Mr. Grigo explained. “The KR trial is a trigger for these films and hopefully, these films become a trigger for more work on this field.”

Released in May 2010, Recaptured has been screened in four provinces and is due to be shown at the Meta House in Phnom Penh in the near future.

ECCC Sponsors On-air Counselling For Victims

The ECCC has become a sponsor of a Cambodian radio show which educates listeners about the traumatic impact of the Khmer Rouge regime and offers on-air counseling to survivors.

The tribunal's Victims Support Section (VSS) will help fund broadcasting costs of The Past in the Present, after signing an agreement with the programme's producer, the Transcultural Psychological Organisation (TPO), on 22 July.

The signatories will ensure that no breaches of confidentiality occur during the show, which features testimonials by civil parties and complainants of ongoing ECCC cases. Talk show guests can use pseudonyms or must sign a release if they want to reveal their identity.

Also, any court-related topics will need to be approved by the tribunal before being broadcast.
